CELEBRATE BLACK HISTORY MONTH ON THE KIMMEL CENTER CULTURAL CAMPUS

February programming includes renowned Broadway, Jazz, R&B, and chamber musicians

Jazz4Freedom* education program teaches 4th graders about
Harlem Renaissance, Civil Rights Movement, and modern-day social heroes

PLUS, FREE events for all ages

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE (Philadelphia, PA, January 9, 2020) —The Kimmel Center Cultural Campus, along with Resident Company support from The Philly POPS and the Philadelphia Chamber Music Society, celebrates Black History Month in February 2020 with an array of FREE and ticketed programming honoring African American artistic expression and culture.

“Our mission is to engage the Philadelphia region’s diverse communities with art through performance and education, and Black History Month is a particularly special time to highlight creative contributions of artists across genre and across the globe,” said Ed Cambron, Executive Vice President & Chief Operating Officer of the Kimmel Center for the Performing Arts. “Alongside our esteemed Resident Companies, we are dedicated to fostering an inclusive and inviting space to experience transformative art. The commitment of our donors and community partners to our 5-year Education Strategic Plan for Growth enables us to present multi-dimensional programs like Jazz4Freedom; partner support positively impacts the development of new work, like former Resident M'Balía Singley's Turn. Our hope is that every guest feels welcome and valued on our Cultural Campus all year round, and particularly those students visiting for workshops this February appreciate the invaluable impact of past, present, and future Black artists."

This February, Kimmel Center Cultural Campus' jazz series continues with Grammy Award-winning Gregory Porter in Verizon Hall on Monday, February 10. Former Kimmel Center Theater Resident, frequent PNC Grow Up Great host, and Philadelphia-based actor M'Balía Singley stars in Turn, February 26 – 29. Using themes from Shakespeare's Othello, M'Balía Singley confronts her experience as a black woman in America with equal parts humor and honesty in this brand-new theatrical work. Turn weaves original songs, comedy, and engrossing stories into a performance that is both sweeping and intimate. From societal expectations to relatable family disfunction, Singley turns to the unlikely 16th century play and finds connections to our 21st century lives. Turn was commissioned and developed through the Kimmel Center's 2017-2018 Theater Residency.

FREE, monthly programming continues during Black History Month with various celebrations, including PNC Grow Up Great with ILL DOOTS on Saturday, February 8 and Sittin' in: Live Sessions on Wednesday, February 12, celebrating founder and curator Anthony Tidd with special guests to be announced at a later date.

Especially timely is the Kimmel Center's Education department's Jazz4Freedom program, developed for 4th grade students from the Philadelphia School District and Archdiocesan Schools, linking Jazz to Black History in Pennsylvania and beyond. Taught by experienced teaching artists through an in-school curriculum, 4th graders are first engaged with a preshow workshop about the Harlem Renaissance and growth of jazz in Philadelphia. The highlight of Jazz4Freedom is a field trip to see Kimmel Center's Jazz4Freedom performance featuring music, dance, and commentary on social change throughout history. Students are inspired by a post-show workshop which links the Civil Rights Movement to jazz and provides the opportunity for reflection on the continuation of social change.

Students participating in Jazz4Freedom will learn more about modern-day heroes for social change, particularly in the arena of climate change. This year, the programming will focus on advocates who are also adolescents, including: Swedish activist Greta Thunberg, 16; American Isra Hirsi, 16, co-founder of the United States Youth Climate Strike; Autumn Peltier, 15, a water-rights activist from Canada and part of the Wikwemikong First Nation; Bruno Rodriguez, 19, of Buenos Aires, who stated "political, economic and cultural crisis of our time" was climate change; and Ecuadorian Helena Gualinga, 17 who hails from the Amazon and fights against deforestation, among other issues.

The Kimmel Center is home to eight beloved Resident Companies – this Black History Month, the Philadelphia Chamber Music Society presents the Ritz Chamber Players on Sunday, February 9. The United States' first chamber music ensemble composed solely of accomplished musicians spanning the African diaspora, these musicians will perform repertoire by African American composers. The Philly POPs pay tribute to The Queen of Soul, Aretha Franklin, with Aretha: Respect; from February 14 – 16, the show features Broadway powerhouse Capathia Jenkins and Grammy-nominated R&B singer Ryan Shaw.

Each 2019-20 Kimmel Center Jazz Residency teams create new, relevant, and engaging “Philly Made” works for the community. In the Kimmel Center Jazz Residency’s seventh consecutive year, all three of these original pieces will focus on the relationship of Philadelphia against a social issue, including the homelessness issue, the introspective examination of one’s cultural identity as a citizen, and a futuristic look at neighborhoods.

Richard Hill Jr. (Composer/Voice/Bass), alongside band members Jim Holton (Cello, Keyboard), Gusten Rudolph (Drums), Elliot Bild (Trumpet) Nasir Dickerson (Saxophone, EWI), Kwame Geez (Saxophone), Mollie Ducoste (Violin), Owen Valentine (Violin), Zoe Lynch (Violin), Lovett Hines (Educator), Sumi Tonooka (Piano), and Cheryl Hill-Herder (Spoken word artist) plans to write a futuristic look at the musical dance rhythms of Philadelphia neighborhoods. He will teach a special, private class for students. These are coordinated directly with the Kimmel Center’s Education Department.

“As Charlie Parker said, ‘Now is the Time’. [My project is] the dance of diversity. This suite will use rhythms of various micro communities in Philadelphia,” said Richard Hill Jr. “I want this piece to encourage children and adults to take a moment and embrace the diversity that Philadelphia offers.” Talking about risk: “I like to use meters that are not common. As an artist and composer, it is my duty to push the envelope.”
