FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE (Philadelphia, PA, September 5, 2019) — The Kimmel Center Cultural Campus is happy to announce season-long programming to celebrate the traditions and vibrancy of Hispanic culture in Philadelphia and beyond, kicking off during Hispanic Heritage Month (September 15 – October 15, 2019). Philadelphia audiences are invited to experience dance, comedy, song, storytelling, and invaluable artistic contributions from across the Hispanic community throughout the year, beginning with two new art exhibitions, Los Trompos and Look Up! Look In.

“We are honored to present visual art, comedy, dance, and more by talented individuals on our Cultural Campus throughout our entire season, but especially during Hispanic Heritage Month,” said Ed Cambron, Chief Operating Officer and Executive Vice President of the Kimmel Center for the Performing Arts. “Our Cultural Campus is an epicenter of storytelling for Philadelphians, as we regularly host speakers, timely community conversations & events; once again, in addition to relevant celebratory programming, in an ongoing effort to highlight Hispanic artists from across our Resident Companies and our own programming, we will focus social media and digital efforts on their stories and successes, and how their heritage impacts their art.”

A new, 3-month, FREE Plaza exhibition featuring works from multiple Mexican artists: Los Trompos, an interactive installation in Commonwealth Plaza, brings to life ten 3D spinning tops; Philadelphians are invited to sit or spin on the structures, fulfilling the artists' vision for collaboration and community interaction as the public works together to make the structures move. The creations of Mexican designers Héctor Esrawe and Ignacio Cadena, these colorful sculptures are created by artists utilizing a traditional fabric weave and appear in varied shapes and colors. The Kimmel Center has commissioned Look Up! Look In. by Mexican-American, Philadelphia-based artist Karina Puente and Karina Puente Arts International. Puente has designed 53 hand-cut panels of "Papel Picado", suspended above the Commonwealth Plaza. The installations are 5-feet wide and range between 6-12 feet long. Both are open to the public at any time during normal building operating hours (10 AM – 6PM, daily – from August 19 through November 17.)

Part of the Kimmel Center Cultural Campus' ongoing monthly, FREE programming, La NOCHE, presented by PNC Arts Alive, mixes the world of music and the Latin culture, providing a fun night out for music and dance lovers alike, with two live bands – the La NOCHE House Band from Philadelphia, the other from a different Latin country each month.

LOS TROMPOS

Kimmel Center Cultural Campus' Commonwealth Plaza

August 19 – November 17, 2019 | FREE

Los Trompos, or “The Spinning Tops”, is designed by Mexican artisans Esrawe + Cadena and draws its inspiration from the form of a spinning top, a popular toy with children around the world. First commissioned by the High Museum of Art in Atlanta, the project features 10 three-dimensional, larger than life tops in a variety of colors and shapes, created in part by fabric woven in a traditional style. By working together, guests may spin the tops on their bases as they interact with the structures in this FREE Plaza installation.

“Only through this interaction and collaboration will the work come to life and be complete.” – Ignacio Cadena, Co-Designer of Los Trompos

The Los Trompos installation was first commissioned by the High Museum of Art in Atlanta, Georgia, and premiered in 2015 in the Woodruff Arts Center's Carroll Slater Sifly Piazza. Since then Los Trompos has traveled throughout the United States, appearing in Houston, Texas; West Palm Beach, Florida; UNC Chapel Hill, North Carolina; and Scottsdale, Arizona.

LOOK UP! LOOK IN.

Kimmel Center Cultural Campus' Commonwealth Plaza

August 19 – November 17, 2019 | FREE

Handcrafted by Philadelphia-based artist Karina Puente, Look Up! Look In. challenges people to stop and “look up” to appreciate this aerial companion piece suspended in the air above the grounded Los Trompos. For this new work, Puente hand-cut 53 Papel Picado that are 5-feet wide and range in length from 6-feet to 12-feet long.

“Papel Picado”, or “perforated paper/pecked paper”, originally derived from the Aztecs, specifically within the San Salvador Huixcolotla area of Mexico, and is created by crafting shapes into paper. Papel picado is also at times associated with air as an element. Headed by Puente, Karina Puente Arts International is a female-run, Philadelphia-based studio. Puente's work has been displayed at Columbia University, the Philadelphia Museum of Art, Studios at Mass MoCA, Corcoran National Gallery, Miami MoCA, Weeksville Heritage Center in Brooklyn, the Museum of International Folk Art in Santa Fe, and Elverhoj Museum of History and Art.

Puente credits her upbringing and heritage when speaking of the papel picado artform: “My custom, hand cut patterns root my practice in tradition and keep me connected to ancestors. Weekly family calls with my Tias in Santa Barbara always result in an AHA! moment. Through the exhibition Look Up! Look

In., my aim is to articulate the spark of a new idea, arrive at solution-oriented thinking, and fly high during this important cultural moment.”
